

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a sensorless brushless DC motor formed by a stator including a plurality of windings and a rotor including 5 permanent magnet poles, inductances of the windings are detected while the rotor is stationary, and then, the angle of the stationary rotor is detected in accordance with the detected inductances.